Calgary Zoo is Canada’s Leader in Wildlife Conservation
Today, zoos around the world make up one of the largest wildlife conservation movements; they play a key role in saving endangered species and engaging the public in conservation.

Areas of focus at the Calgary Zoo:
Studying conservation needs and sustainability of species reintroduced back into the wild.

Developing, implementing and evaluating strategies that benefit biodiversity and local communities. In some cases the expertise of our staff working in the field with local communities is the most valuable contribution we can make, other times our support is purely financial.

Conducting research, advocating, and disseminating information on behalf of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) Reintroduction Specialist Group, North American and Caribbean Section.

Western Canada’s largest accredited zoo makes every trip an adventure with over 1000 animals representing 130 species, six acres of botanical gardens, a prehistoric park, meeting spaces and more.

Grow your knowledge of gardens on this gorgeous scenic tour through the one-of-a-kind Dorothy Harvie Gardens! On top of all the beauty to discover, you’ll get a glimpse into our heritage and ecological practices. Enjoy the ENMAX Conservatory’s lush, tropical oasis while you take a closer look at how people and plants are connected – from the air we breathe to the food we eat and the roofs over our heads. You’ll also discover ways to reduce your environmental footprint with interactive displays featuring alternative energy technologies you can use in your own home.

The tour starts with a warm welcoming and brief orientation followed by a delicious garden-to-fork inspired meal. It’s prepared fresh by the zoo’s culinary team with roasted root vegetables, premium Alberta beef, tasty pastries, squares and more, all the while learning the history behind your meal and the future of food sustainability.
